Applicable to:
German shepherds born on July 1st, 2017 or after for consideration of showing, breeding or competing in Germany between the ages of 9-13 months. The day the dog turns 13 months of age and older will need to apply for special permission.

Reasoning
The character or nature is a feature set out in the German Shepherd standard, which is used to characterize the product as “typical” while taking many other factors into consideration. The assertions and requirements covered by the character judgment are principally designed to prove the dogs are environmentally sound and socially friendly. But they are also drawn upon as an additional examination for our working dog requirements. The character judgment includes determining a dog’s behavioral traits that manifest themselves based on hereditary assets subject to the available breeding, development and posture qualities.

What Happens in a Character Assessment Test?
The dog is assessed in two ways: based on the specific evaluation of each behavior trait (descriptive) and based on reliability ratings. Character judgments are split into the following categories:

- Impartiality
  The dog should allow their handler and an unknown person, e.g. the judge, to touch them at different points on the body.

- Social behavior
  Interaction with people, individuals, groups.

- Noise sensitivity
  In this section, the dog is subjected to different acoustic stimuli, e.g. rattling, engine noise and blanks being fired as the loudest stimulus.

- Certainty of movement
  Sensitivity to heights (e.g. assessed by looking at a dog’s movement behavior across tables) as well as a dog’s movement on flat ground.

- Play and predatory instinct/behavior under stress
  The assessment is based on how the dog plays with their owner (teamwork) and with an unknown person (representative). Furthermore, the intensity towards obstructed prey (willingness to find) and their willingness to play under increased demands (moving table) are also assessed. Only a dog that feels comfortable in its environment and can cope with the situation can play.

- Basic nature
  Behavior in isolation and when meeting an unknown person.
Grounds for Exclusion

Dogs that are very anxious, aggressive dogs that show increased aggression in peaceful situations, as well as dogs that are sensitive to shots being fired. The dog may attempt the repeat the Character Test one more time.

Rules for Participation:
